

Journal of Collaborative Leadership copyright and licensing policy:

In submitting work for consideration, author(s) are indicating the submission is his/her/their original work and has not been previously published in another academic journal, book or other copyrighted material, nor is it currently under consideration for such publication. The authors of submitted manuscripts are responsible for statements of fact and accurate reporting of data and other information. Neither the editors nor the publisher are responsible for such information. The author(s) retain copyright and are free to use, publish, license or list the manuscript at their discretion. Per guidelines for open access publication, in submitting the manuscript for the peer review process, the author(s) implicitly grant license to the editors, as well as the publisher, Collaborative Educational Programs for the Americas (CEPA), to edit and publish the manuscript in the open access online Journal of Collaborative Leadership through CEPA's website. CEPA or the editors of the Journal of Collaborative Leadership also have the non-exclusive right to list the journal on any hosting site or database. The attribution policy is as follows: The Journal of Collaborative Leadership will cite the author(s), per APA format, and the author(s) will cite the Journal of Collaborative Leadership as the original publication source for the manuscript. The editors of the Journal of Collaborative Leadership reserve the right to refuse manuscripts for publication (see our peer review process and author submission guidelines for more information on the selection process), and reserve the right to publish corrections and/or retractions, if necessary, per best practices.